2017-11-22 Excerpt from Petty's Pure Bred Seed Corn and Field Seeds, 1928: 26th Season My dear Mr. Pettyz - If my memory serves me right, it is about twelve years since I began buying my seed corn from you. From a few bushels up to forty bushels or more the last few years, I think that possibly' thi-s year was the best demonstra ton that we have had of the value of good dependable seed, on my hill land with your white corn the first we have ever planted we picked better than: fifty bushels while on the bottom lands the yellow made over seventy. We have just finished picking, this week and we picked over thirty thousand bushels, every bushel grown from your seed. With kind regards, I am

But a lifetime of study has made our progress steady and sure. An absolute money-back guarantee is placed by us on every bushel of corn sold. It is one of the strongest guarantees ever put out by a seed firm. It is a complete safeguard to the customer. We could not make this guarantee if we did not have the seed corn with which to make it good. Seed Corn Charles Pinckney Hartley 1917

Better Seed Corn Charles Pinckney Hartley 1920 "Corn yields can be increased more surely and more cheaply by the use of better seed than in any other way. Seed corn should be selected in the field from stalks which yield best in equal competition with others. It should be of a variety which succeeds well and matures under local conditions. Ears should be saved only from stalks free from disease. Drooping ears which shed rain readily should be selected, and these should be borne on the stalks at a convenient height for husking. In the South, ears which are well protected from insects by a long, tight shuck covering should be chosen. The same day that seed is gathered it should be hung in a dry airy place. One of the best ways to cure seed corn is to hang it from the rafters of a barn or open shed. It should not be allowed to freeze before it is thoroughly dry. After it is well cured it should be stored in a dry place where it will remain secure from mice, rats, birds and insects. Well-cured seed corn will yield a much better crop than seed originally as good but injured through lack of care. Generally speaking, the seed corn that produces the best crop is the cheapest. Farmers are justified in devoting considerable time to selecting and caring for it or in paying good prices if better seed corn is purchased."--Page 2
