Presidential Sheet Music Danny O. Crew 2001

Political historians have traditionally interpreted the people and events of each presidential era by studying books, periodicals, letters, diaries and speeches. One source of printed material that has not received much scholarly attention is published music, much of which has been all but lost in the archives of libraries and museums. The traditional librariansly cataloging of music has ignored important aspects such as lyrical content and cover art, making it impossible to comprehensively locate and study items by subject matter. Presidential Sheet Music presents an exhaustive listing of presidential-related music in all printed forms, and provides information on each piece. Thus may we expand our understanding of political communication and discourse throughout American history. A sizable Introduction discusses matters from the publication in 1768 of The Liberty Song (which formally made music an instrument of political expression in America) to the few 1980s and 1990s presidential songs and marches. There are also helpful appendices which list music by titles, composers, publishers, and candidates.

The Principles of Aesthetics De Witt Henry Parker 1920 The Principles of Aesthetics by De Witt Henry Parker, first published in 1920, is a rare manuscript, the original residing in one of the great libraries of the world. This book is a reproduction of that original, which has been scanned and cleaned by state-of-the-art publishing tools for better readability and enhanced appreciation. Restoration Editors' mission is to bring long out of print manuscripts back to life. Some smudges, annotations or unclear text may still exist, due to permanent damage to the original work. We believe the literary significance of the text justifies offering this reproduction, allowing a new generation to appreciate it.

Music for the Millions Van Allen Bradley 2018-12-12 In Music for the Millions, author Van Allen Bradley tells the story of a firm which, at the time of this book's original publication in 1962, had endured for 100 years. But the Kimball Piano and Organ Company accomplished more than simply surviving a century—it played a dominant role in the development of the industry of which it was a part. The company started as a piano dealership in Chicago in 1857 as W.W. Kimball and Company by William Wallace Kimball (1828-1904). In 1864, Kimball moved from its earliest location in the corner of a jewelry store to sales rooms in the Crosby Opera House. The Great Chicago Fire destroyed all of Kimball's commercial assets in 1871, but he continued selling from his home, and rebuilt his dealership business. In 1877, W.W. Kimball began assembling its own reed organs, and after three years the company began offering organs made entirely in-house. In 1882, the Kimball company was incorporated, and an expansive factory was built to produce reed organs; soon, the factory was producing 15,000 organs a year—the world's largest organ maker. In 1887, Kimball began building a five-story factory for making its own pianos, and the next year produced 500 instruments of indifferent quality. By 1893 at the World's Columbian Exposition, at which Kimball received the "Worlds Columbian Exposition Award," Kimball was known for high quality, efficiency in manufacture, and aggressive sales practices, using 35-40 traveling salesmen to cover cities and remote areas. In 1959, the W.W.

Kimball Company was purchased from the last remaining Kimball family heir by Mr. Arnold F. Habig and became a wholly owned subsidiary of The Jasper Corporation. Piano production was relocated to the small, southern Indiana town of West Baden, Indiana, where the company was rejuvenated and once again began to grow—10 years after the purchase, Kimball was once again the world's largest piano company.

The Reason of Schooling Thomas S. Popkewitz 2014-09-04 Problematising the "reason" of schooling as historical and political, in this book leading international and interdisciplinary scholars challenge the common sense of schooling and the relation of society, education, and curriculum studies. Examining the limits of contemporary notions of power and schooling, the argument is that the principles that order school subjects, the curriculum, and teaching reforms are historical practices that govern what is thought, acted on, and talked about. Highlighting the dynamics of social exclusion, the normalizing of people through curriculum, and questions of social inclusion, The "Reason" of Schooling underscores the urgency for rethinking curriculum research.
