Man on the Run Suzanne Floyd 2015-02-03 MAN ON THE RUN Watching a television show, Becca Dutton is certain she's seen the man the FBI is looking for in Flanagan's Gap, Arizona, a small mountain town of less than six hundred people where she and her mother own and operate the general store. Mrs. Dutton is just as certain she's mistaken; pointing out the man she has seen is much younger than the fugitive the FBI is looking for. Becca can't let go of the feeling he's somewhere around, especially with the petty thefts the town has recently been experiencing. Does that mean there is more than one man living in the forest surrounding their town? All of her life, Becca has heard about The Hermit living in the woods. He'd never caused any trouble for the people in town, leaving wood carvings when he took food or clothing he can't make or grow for himself. Becca is sure the current trouble they've been having is due to the fugitive, not The Hermit who has disappeared from the forest. When her store and home are destroyed, it becomes clear someone has targeted her and the town. Who is behind all their troubles? Will they figure it out before it's too late?

Run Annette Howard Calhoun 2012-09 Run is a story of a young woman born in the early nineteen and forties. She spends many years searching for happiness and looking for peace after the death of her beloved Daddy when she was very young. She chases idle dreams, addictions, religions, even other people, hoping to fill the emptiness that plagues her. The irony is that the only place she ever needed to search was within.

Four-Hundred Meter Champion Thomas James Wooden 2003-01-01 Pearl Robinson had run the one-hundred-meter race for the Detroit Motown Track Club since age nine. She was now thirteen and had a huge dilemma: she had never won a race! So her coach, Stanley Jackson, switched Pearl to the four-hundred-meter race, hoping that a shakeup would bring out the best in his runner.

The Mythical Zoo Boria Sax 2013-11-29 A beautifully illustrated alternate taxonomy of the animal kingdom, based on mythology, literature, art, and other cultural realms: "Charming." —ForeWord Sacred cows, wily serpents, fearsome lions, elegant swans, busy bees, and sly foxes—all are caricatures of the creatures themselves, yet they reflect not only how different cultures see the natural world around them but also how such cultures make use of their native animals. In this fun and thought-provoking book, historian and animal enthusiast Boria Sax argues for a classification of animals that goes beyond the biological to encompass a more meaningful distinction: tradition. From ants and elephants to tigers and tortoises, The Mythical Zoo weaves together a cross-cultural tapestry encompassing mythology, history, art, science, philosophy, and literature. The result is a beautifully illustrated, masterfully composed love letter to the animal kingdom.

The Running Life Steven McCann 2021-09-09 Running is a part of our consciousness and subconsciousness all through life. We run as children chasing kites and ice-cream trucks, and run away from irate parents. We run as teenagers in our sports. We run as adults to stay in shape, and as elderly people, we run after toddlers that suddenly escape our protection. We run in nightmares. We run in happy dreams for the exuberance of pure freedom. We run to catch subways, buses and planes. We run to meet our lovers. Our clocks run fast, or slow, and we run late, or early. My running stories capture some of the ways we run. A kindergartener chases his mother for an entire mile, so he can walk her to the grocery store. A high school track athlete runs to win the heart of a classmate. A college coed wakes up late for her final exam and runs frantically across campus to preserve her grade point. Another young woman runs to escape a rapist. An elderly man watches joggers sweep by on a country road from his seat in a wheelchair, holding in his heart all the wonderful miles he once ran himself.

The Boys in the Boat Daniel James Brown 2021-03-30 The #1 New York Times–bestselling story about the American Olympic rowing triumph in Nazi Germany—from the author of Facing the Mountain. Soon to be a major motion picture directed by George Clooney For readers of Unbroken, out of the depths of the Depression comes an irresistible story about beating the odds and finding hope in the most desperate of times—the improbable, intimate account of how nine working-class boys from the American West showed the world at the 1936 Olympics in Berlin what true grit really meant. It was an unlikely quest from the start. With a team composed of the sons of loggers, shipyard workers, and farmers, the University of Washington's eight-oar crew team was never expected to defeat the elite teams of the East Coast and Great Britain, yet they did, going on to shock the world by defeating the German team rowing for Adolf Hitler. The emotional heart of the tale lies with Joe Rantz, a teenager without family or prospects, who rows not only to regain his shattered self-regard but also to find a real place for himself in the world. Drawing on the boys' own journals and vivid memories of a once-in-a-lifetime shared dream, Brown has created an unforgettable portrait of an era, a celebration of a remarkable achievement, and a chronicle of one extraordinary young man's personal quest.

The Secrets We Left Behind Susan Elliot Wright 2015-05-05 It was a summer of love, and a summer of secrets. She has built a good life: a husband who adores her, a daughter she is fiercely proud of, a home with warmth and love at its heart. But things were not always so good, and the truth is that she has done things she can never admit. Then one evening a phone call comes out of the blue. It is a voice from long ago, a man from a past that she has tried so hard to hide. He knows who she really is and what she has done. Now he is dying and he gives her an ultimatum: either she tells the truth, or he will. And so we are taken back to that long hot summer of 1976 to a house by the sea on the southern coast of England, where her story begins and where the truth will be revealed. . . . Told in dual narratives that jump back and forth in time, Elliot Wright has crafted a story with secrets that unfold through the very last page. Compelling, immersive, and thoroughly surprising, The Secrets We Left Behind is a stunning follow up to the author's acclaimed UK debut The Things We Never Said. Skyhorse Publishing, as well as our Arcade, Yucca, and Good Books imprints, are proud to publish a broad range of books for readers interested in fiction—novels, novellas, political and medical thrillers, comedy, satire, historical fiction, romance, erotic and love stories, mystery, classic literature, folklore and mythology, literary classics including Shakespeare, Dumas, Wilde, Cather, and much more. While not every title we publish becomes a New York Times bestseller or a national bestseller, we are committed to books on subjects that are sometimes overlooked and to authors whose work might not otherwise find a home.

Storm King Wildlands Reserve Ben Kruser 2014-01-11 Running is Dinah Salenger's metaphor for life. Like her morning runs, Dinah gathers her courage to walk out the front door and face the day's challenges. She and her teenage daughter Selah must start new lives after moving to their Catskill cottage near Storm King Village. While Dinah suffers bitter job hunt rejections and smart, blue hair Selah takes on science fair competitors and bullies, both refuse to accept anyone's double standards. An unlikely mentor sets Dinah up for trail running with Bill, a laid back ultra runner and Storm King Wildlands Reserve Ranger with vast running knowledge, a giving heart and a painful, secret relation with the Reserve and village. Selah helps train Norm, an elite cross country runner who respects Selah as his equal. When Dinah and Selah land summer jobs at the densely forested Reserve, a whole new set of obstacles and friendships emerge. Through interwoven events to foil a scheme to plunder the Reserve's Nature Center trust fund, expose the High School's drug dealer, and uncover a centuries old legend of Catskill gnomes, running and relationships climax during the Storm King marathon when Dinah and Selah finally achieve the dreams they once thought lost.

Sources of Western Zhou History Edward L. Shaughnessy 1992-01-08 The thousands of ritual bronze vessels discovered by China's archaeologists serve as the major documentary source for the Western Zhou dynasty (1045-771 B.C.). These vessels contain long inscriptions full of detail on subjects as diverse as the military history of the period, the bureaucratic structure of the royal court, and lawsuits among the gentry. Moreover, being cast in bronze, the inscriptions preserve exactly the contemporary script and language. Shaughnessy has written a meticulous and detailed work on the historiography and interpretation of these objects. By demonstrating how the inscriptions are read and interpreted, Shaughnessy makes accessible in English some of the most important evidence about life in ancient China.

Runner in Red Tom Murphy 2018-04-01 A reporter and an ex-baseball-player-turned-cameraman search for a mysterious runner in this cozy mystery inspired by a real-life Boston Marathon legend. There has been a long-standing belief that a woman slipped into the 1951 Boston Marathon undetected and ran the race. If that could be proven it would make her the first woman to have run a marathon on American soil. She wore "red," as claimed by a group of Canadian runners who say they tried to bring the matter to the attention of race Director Jock Semple and other race officials. But to no avail, their story was never corroborated, and so today the "Runner in Red" remains a mystery and an urban legend. A period piece set against the backdrop of the 2000 Boston Marathon, the Millennial marathon, this fictional mystery novel is also a love story, family drama, and uplifting tale of the human spirit that explores the history of women's running in page-turning fashion. "A great story of three amazing women."—Bill Rodgers, four-time winner of the Boston Marathon "Moves faster than a speeding bullet through the streets of Boston."—Katherine Switzer, first registered woman runner of the Boston Marathon (1967) "An entertaining, fast-paced mystery thriller."—Jack Fultz, winner of the 1976 Boston Marathon "A magical story!"—Uta Pippig, three-time Boston Marathon women's champion (1993-1995)

See Stormy Run Boyd Wright 2004-11-01 Espionage is the last thing on her mind when a young patriotic college graduate, Abby St. Giles travels to Washington to join in the war effort. But soon she finds herself one of the four thousand women who make up one fifth of the cloak and dagger skullduggery of OSS (the Office of Strategic Services), America's first central intelligence agency of World War II. When the murder of her friend, Suzanne, a Navy Lieutenant, implicates a suspicious "French diplomat," and a treasonous connection emerges to a prominent Senator, a top secret search begins for "Jana," code name of a German master spy whose network of operations is disrupting the allies efforts to destroy the German war machine. From America to Europe she joins her OSS colleagues in the tantalizing clandestine operations of intelligence, and discovers more about loyalty, sacrificial patriotism, and the horrors of war than she bargained for. But amidst the tragedy and devastation, she finds a depth of strength and an enduring faith which carries her through. A clinical, forensic psychologist and veteran of OSS, Dr. Margaret Emanuelson draws from her past experiences to weave her characters in and out of each other's lives in this fascinating, riveting, fast moving story of espionage, political intrigue, murder, treason, deception, patriotism, and love.

The Old Straight Track Alfred Watkins 1988-01-01 First published in 1925 THE OLD STRAIGHT TRACK remains the most important source for the study of ancient tracks or leys that criss-cross the British Isles—a fascinating system which was old when the Romans came to Britain. First in the Herefordshire countryside, and later throughout Britain, Alfred Watkins noticed that beacon hills, mounds, earthworks, moats and old churches built on pagan sites seemed to fall in straight lines. His investigation convinced him that Britain was covered with a vast network of straight tracks, aligned with either the sun or the path of a star. Although traces of this network can be found all over the country, the principles behind the ley system remain a mystery. Are they the legacy of a prehistoric scientific knowledge which is now all but lost? And was their purpose secular or religious?
